

Russell 1000® Financial Services

The Russell 1000 Financial Services Index is a subset of the Russell 1000 Index that measures the performance of the securities classified in the financial services sector of the large cap U.S. equity market. The inclusion of companies in this index is based on a combination of their primary lines of business and market capitalizations. The Russell 1000 Financial Services Index is constructed to provide a comprehensive and unbiased barometer for the financial services sector. It is completely reconstituted annually to ensure new and growing equities are reflected, and it is maintained regularly to verify that companies continue to remain financially focused in their financial services-related business lines. Russell places a company into the financial services sector on the basis of its primary economic orientation. Primary economic orientation is determined using multiple resources, including SEC filings, company web pages and stock exchanges.
